NEW YORK HEREALD, MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1862.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE. The Supervisors no longer having any control of the building of the new Court House, all application for appropriations will be made by the commission or judges of the courts, who are deeply interested in the completion of the building. It is stated that the commissioners will apply for an appropriation of $260,000 for that purpose.

EMIGUANT HEAD MONEY.

During that period when emigration was at its height there was a law on the statute books of the State requirug the masters or owners of vessels to pay into the State Large sums were thus paid in; but a portion of those in-terested paid the money under protest, claiming that the law was unconstitutional. The question was taken into the United States Court, and by the judges presiding declared to be unconstitutional. The money was thereupon refunded to those who paid their fees under protest, and now those who have not received a return of their fees on account of not paying under protest are making a desperate effort to secure the passage of a law authorizing the State officials to investigate the matter and refund to all that have paid their fees. It is said that she whole amounts to nearly two millions of dollars, and since the agitation of the matter much of it has plassed into second bands for a mere nominal sum, making a big prize for the present holders should they prove successful. The bill was before the Assembly last year, but got no further than the Committee of the Whole.

QUARANTINE CONTROVERSY REVIVED. The sale of the Quarantino property on Staten Island and the arrangement of Quarantine matters will again be one of the important questions of the session. For between two factions upon this subject. One side, unde the lead of the Quarantine Commissioners and the Gover-nor, have labored for the passage of one bill for the settle-ment of the vexed question and the disposal of the lands on Staten Island, as well as the establishment of a new Quarantine depot. The other faction, under the lead of Dr. Jerome, Lieutenant Governor Campbell and the radicals of the Senate, have had another mode of arranging the same question, and having it shally disposed of. Either would, doubtless, when fully explained, he satisfactory to the inhabitants of Staten Island. The former combination has succeeded in controlling the House and the latter the Senate; and thus the matter was sure to fall between the two, and the question remain at the adjournment pre cisely the same as at the commoncement. The question will be again brought up this winter, with a fair prospect of the same result as heretofere, and end with nothing lone for Quarantine. portion of the inhabitants of Staten Island, at least by those who have settled on the island, from New Jersey, to get up a trade between the State of New York and New Jersey—the latter to have Staten Island annexed, the tsland to form hereafter a portion of the State of New Jersey, and the State of New York to be and by a transfer of Sundy Hook as a quarantine station for the city of New York was a quarantine station for the city of New York. We understand that the Board of Supervisors of Richmond county have already passed a resolution petitioning the Lagislature to make that trade, under the idea of being soluted from taxes as soon as they are annexed to the nation of Jersey. This may prove an interesting piece of news to the New York business man and merchants who reside on the island, and, since such a transfer would redues the value of property about fifty per cent, we imagine that they will be inclined to reject the project of the ferrevites of the island.

We have thus endeavored to review the important questions that will be brought before the Legislature during the present session. There are a number of jobs of no great importance that we have been obliged to omit for want of room. We have, we believe, enumerated all the important schemes, unless it is those that will be presented for our neighboring city, Brooklyn, which of atches become a favorite place for the jobbers to trump of that city will be presented as usual. In all of this there is plainly a rich field for the lobbymen at Albany. The facts sustain our frequent statements that the jobber 5 would take advantage of our national troubles, and go in with a reah for the plunder, under the idea that no attention would be paid to their operations. What a field Hon.
Massa Greeley will have for recuperating his finances, and preparing for a grand rush for the mantle of Preston King

With this we leave the matter in the hands of the lawmakers and the lobby, urging our citizens at the same time to keep a sharp lookout for the operations at the State capital. Whatever may be the results of the seasion, we will guarantee that there will be a general rejoicing throughout the State when the tidings reach it that the Legislature has adjourned sine die,

The additions will be only one story high, adding some 1,400 square feet to the present ground limits of the office.

P. S.—Since the above was put in type the plan has been accepted by the Postmaster General. The estimated cost is about $7,000.

It has been officially settled at the Post Office Department that the title of Postmaster is the only one to be the lower of the source of

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SUNDAY, Jan. 5, 1862. The annual Custom House tables of the trade of the port of New York for the year 1861 will be ready in the course of a day or two, and we therefore postpone our usual weekly comparisons. The

Imports of general merchandise for the week end-ing yesterday were as follows:—

1800. 1801. 1802.

General merchandise...$1,439,541 1,091,225 $1,000,517 We continue to import tea, coffee, hides, sugar, molasses, &c., as usual, notwithstanding the increased duty; latterly we have been importing a large amount of arms. Our dry goods imports have fallen very low, partly in consequence of the Morrill tariff. It is quite desirable that Congress should watch the course of trade. In the event of any tendency toward an increase of imports of dry goods, the duties should be increased. So long as the war lasts this country wants no foreign manufactures of wool, catton, silk or linen. It cannot afford to pay for them, or for any British manufactures of iron or steel. When the rebellion is suppressed it may possibly become desirable to reopen our markets to the products of foreign in dustry. But so long as the rebels persevere, on the strength of hopes of foreign recognition and assistance, we cannot afford to indulge in purchases of any foreign goods which can possibly be dispensed with. Our exports continue to Maeral, and the railroads continue to supply the reaboard with large quantities of flour and provisions for export, Specie is moving custward, though not in large amounts as yet. We can afford to spare a large quantity of gold to Europe,

The first week of suspension by our banks has passed over without any accident. When the banks commenced business on Monday last they had something over $23,000,000 in their vaults. At the close of business yesterday they had about $24,000,000; so that they have gained coin during the week. Now that suspension has actually taken place, the banks will probably lose no more specie. The differences which existed between the city, they only benedting their own attorneys, will them during the early part of last week have now, doubtless result in the introduction of a bill to abolish the Board and place its powers in the hands of the Mayor. supply its dealers with coin for the payment of duties or any other necessary purpose. The dis-sentient banks likewise agreed yesterday to receive United States Treasury notes on deposit as money, stipulating, however, that checks drawn against them should be paid in Treasury notes. This refinement will not last long. If every bank dealer is hereafter to have two kinds of accountsone in bank notes and another in Treasury notes the labors of cashiers and tellers will be measurably increased. In the course of a few days it will burst upon the mind of the managers of our banks that if United States Treasury notes are not worthy of being considered as valuable as New York bank notes, the capital of our banks, which is nearly altogether invested in government securities, cannot be worth much. The banks are not in a position to cast slurs upon government credit, and the less nonsense we hear hereafter about calling deposits of Treasury notes "special deposits," the better it will be for their interest. We published yesterday a report and resolutions which are said to have been passed at the meeting on Saturday before last, and which, for some reason or other-have been kept concealed from the public ever since. The point of these documents is an appeal to Congress to make provision for the funding of the paper about to be issued by government. This is excellent, and we trust the committee will press the subject on the attention of Mr. Thaddeus Stevens and his colleagues. It would have been better, perhaps, if the representations of the banks had not taken the form of a threat. They must perceive that they are helpless in the matter, and that, whatever Congress does, they cannot help receiving Treasury notes on deposit. Their experience during the past six months ought to have convinced them that neither Mr. Chase nor Congress is dependent upon their favors for means to arry on the war. Money has been rather close during the week.

mainly in consequence of the calling in of loans by some of our leading banks. A notion prevails among some of our leading bank managers that this is a good time to shut off mercantile and other customers with a view to strengthen the banks. To be consistent, the banks which favor this theory must go into liquidation at once. Every one knows that the banks have invested nearly all their capital in government securities. If, in consequence of this anomalous position, they now deliberately refuse to perform their proper duties to the mer. cantile community, they will obviously relinquish all claim to the title of mercantile institutions, and the mercantile community will at once proceed to institute new banks, under Mr. Chase's scheme, to take their place. What would become of the commercial assets of the existing banks in this event we forbear to inquire. Some of the more farsighted of our bank presidents argue that the loan certificate system ought to be carried out to its full extent at the present crisis, and that the banks should use their government securities as a banking basis, and accommodate their dealers to that extent. This would certainly seem the safer course to pursue in view of the mercantile paper now held by the banks. If government aises to pay are worthless, nothing is of any value. And if the banks shut down on the public. they will some day find themselves burthened not only with a large amount of government securities which they cannot sell, but likewise with an immense quantity of commercial paper which will be valueless. The notion which seems to be entertained by some of our bank managers, of fighting the situation, can only lead to loss and ruin. The part of wisdom is to recognise the crisis, and ac-

Foreign exchange closed yesterday firm at 113½ a 114 for bankers' bills on London, and 5.05 for bankers' bills on Paris. At these rates, calling gold 134 a 2 per cent premium, there is still a profit jeft on its exportation. It is evident that there is an active speculative movement in the foreign exchange market, and it is possible that, unless some untoward event occurs, exchange and gold may both rise to considerably higher points. Brokers and bankers confidently predict 115, and even 120, for bills on London, and 5 a 8 per cent premium for gold. There is no reason why these predictions should be realized, unless it be the operations of speculators. If, however, the helief spreads that gold and exchange are going to advance, every one will want to buy, and it is impossible to say what points may not be touched in the excitement. Our foreign trade for the year 1861 n us creditors of the world at large, and in ordinary circumstances exchange ought to rule below par The anomalous position of our finances and the operations of speculators may, however, for a time reverse the natural tendency of the market, and lead to the advance which is so confidently expected. We can only say that such an advance will not rest on any substantial basis, and will not accord with the fundamental principles of political economy; however marked it may be, and however relia-ble it may seem, it must sooner or later-lead to a collapse in exchange which will probably prove

The following table shows the course of the stock narket during the past week and month:-

The week has been one of moderate activity in the stock market, and prices of most scourities are better than they were a week ago. The adare better than they were a week ago. The advance is due, first, to a general notion that the emission of government paper and the suspension of specie payments must cause an inflation; secondly, to the settlement of the difficulty with Great Britain; and, thirdly, to the impression that vigorous and successful military movements are at hand. The stock market has not, however, taken the bound which many operators looked for when they first heard of the suspension of specie paythey first heard of the suspension of specie pay-ments. The fact is, nothing has yet happened which should necessarily cause stocks to rise. The inflation has not begun, and many weeks must clapse before the increase of the currency is actually felt in the general markets. Money i in fact, apparently scarcer than it was a we ; ago. By-and-by, when the country begins to be gorged with paper money, it will be safe to look for the usual phenomena of an in-flation; at present, if those phenomena become apparent in the stock market, as they are developing themselves in the exchange market, it will be safe to conclude that the future is being anticipated. We look, however, with confidence for an advance in United States 6's and 7.30 Treasury notes. The moment government begins to pay its debts in paper bearing a very low rate of interest, or none at all, the holders of that paper will convert it into the government 6's and 7.30's, so long es these can be bought at a moderate price. To what extent the general market would sympathize is a fair matter for speculation. The great railroads are doing the best winter business they ever had. The Central and Erie will each show over $300,000 increase for December, and as much or more in January.

It is expected that the Committee of Ways and Means in Congress will report to morrow a bill for supplying the government with money for the prosecution of the war. Of coopse there can be no doubt as to the mature of the measure. It contractors and purveyors. It must make that paper a legal tender; and it must provide that, now or hereafter, that paper shall be funded in stock of the United States, bearing 5, 6 or 7 per shall be funded in stock of the United States, bearing 5, 6 or 7 per shall be funded in stock of the United States, bearing 5, 6 or 7 per shall be funded in stock of the United States, bearing 5, 6 or 7 per shall be funded in stock of the United States, bearing 5, 6 or 7 per shall be funded in shall be sha cent interest, unless it should suit the convenience of the government to redeem it in specie. So far as these points are concerned the Committee of Ways and Means has no-discretion. The crisis is imperative. It rests with the committee and with Congress to determine the details of the plannamely, at what period the irredeemable government paper shall be funded, into what kind of stock it shall be convertible, whether or no it shall bear interest, on what conditions it may be redeemed in coin, and what form of taxation shall be adopted to render it so certain of redemption that it shall not depreciate. With regard to the first point, it would seem that the government currency ought to be convertible at all times after midsummer next. It is evident that it will circulate as money throughout the country, and that, once issued, it will remain in circulation for a long period of time. If Congress should decide that it shall bear no in terest, the longer it remains affoat the better for the Treasury Department. Two hundred millions of dollars can readily be floated in the shape of government paper. If so much can be kept out without trouble for two years, at least twelve millions of dollars in interest will be saved. If, on another hand, it should be deemed advisable to give to the new government currency an advan-tage over ordinary bank notes by readering it dividend-paving, an annual charge of say three per cent would probably answer the purpose, and in this event it should not be convertible for eighteen or twenty-four months. As to the nature of the stockinto which it should be funded, it is only necessary to remark that for twenty years, with brief intervals, the five per cents of the United States have commanded over par in the markets of the world. The present rebellion suppressed, there is no reason to doubt but they would sel at a premium again. If, therefore, Congress feels confident of the power of the nation to subdue the rebels, it would seem sufficient and proper to render the new national currency convertible, at a fixed period, into United States bonds bearing five per cent interest, and redeemable at the pleasure of the government after twenty or thirty years. Government should, however, reserve the right of redeeming the new currency in specie at the time of its conversion. It is possible that the rebels may succumb sooner than is commonly ex. pected. In this event the United States Treasury will be flush, and government ought not to place itself in a position to be compelled to buy up its own promises to pay at twenty per cent premium, as was done under the Presidency of Pierce. No difficultion to be adopted. At the extra session, held in July, Congress imposed an income tax, the worst possible form of taxation for a country like ours, where fixed incomes are unknown, and men's profits fluctuate widely from year to year. In England, where a large proportion of the wealthy classes derive their income from hereditary investments in land or in the public funds, an income tax is a simple and equitable impost. In this country no one enjoys a fixed income, and the scheme adopted by Congress in July is neither likely to press evenly on the people of the North, nor to be collected with facility, nor to yield a large amount of revenue. The desired object may be much more surely and conveniently attained by taxing specific objects. with regard to which there can be no difficulty. For instance, there might be a direct tax of $40,000,000 apportioned among the loyal States, and collected by the several State governments by the same process as State taxes are now collected. Then a sum of thirty millions might be collected by a suitable tax on all kinds of deeds, sales, conveyances, leases, mortgages, charter parties, policies insurance, bills of exchange, promissory notes, checks, sale notes, wills, bonds of surety, and all such instruments as convey or insure or hypothe-cate property or money. A large sum might be raised by a suitable tax, say 1/2 per cent, on all transfers or issues of stock in bank, insurance, railroad, cauel, manufacturing or other stock in incorporated companies. If the issues of newspapers and periodicals were taxed, say 1/4 of a cent for each daily issue of each paper, a large revenue would be produced without any appreciable difference to the public. Finally, a large number of objects should be specially taxed-for instance, spirits, wines and ales, which could be taxed specifically at so much a year when the license to sell was granted: carriages, watches, silver plate gold jewelry, all of which, in like manner, should be taxed in the shop of the vendor; the incomes of resident foreigners, who do not propose to become citizens; all articles of luxury used exclusively by the rich, &c., &c.
